

Morning sharing (27th November, 2014)

W-Winter (Chan Po Ying 4C)

Y-Yan (Kwok Sin Yan 4C)

W How often do you write a letter?

Y Hmm...Once a week. What about you?

W I used to write letters in the past, but I don't do it now.

Y Why?

W To be honest, I don't like writing letters, because I think it wastes time. If I need to communicate with friends who live in a foreign country, I tend to write them emails. It won't take more than 1 second before my email successfully reaches my friend's mailbox. If I have something urgent and I really need to tell my friends, I will definitely go for Whatsapp. I can even record voice messages if I don't feel like typing out words! So convenient it is! Internet is always a good platform for us to get our messages across.

Y Yes, you might be right. But writing a letter can bring us loads of benefits. First of all, letters are filled with memories. Each of them carries emotions of the writer at the point of writing. For example, when I was really dejected about my results in the First UT, I found no one to talk to because I didn't want to be embarrassed. I reckoned I could turn to my friend in Guangxi. While I was writing that letter, I felt that every single word I had made an effort in writing carried tears and my real emotions. For letters I have received so far, I have been keeping a good record of them. Those letters could be precious memories between my friend and I. Whenever I feel sad, I will write a letter to myself. Recently I have also written a letter to be opened by myself 10 years from now.

W That's exciting, isn't it? Let's spend some quality time on writing a letter to the friend we really treasure, to share with him or her our true feeling, shall we?
